I don't think the government has done enough to prosecute Microsoft. Not only are they squashing competition they are trying to make companies forever dependant on them through their new licensing strategy. Does everyone know that MS is a founder of this website (techleadership.org) that is sponsoring this feedback application. I got a flyer in the mail and a call at the office about responding via this web site. Only Microsoft could be behind this kind of effort. Microsoft's tactics are so heavy handed I am afraid to put my real name down because of fear of reprisals. Somebody has to do something about them.
